

Allison Ball is the 48th Auditor of Public Accounts for the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Prior to being elected Auditor, Ball served two terms as Kentucky State Treasurer. Before that, she spent four years as Assistant Floyd County Attorney, prosecuting child abuse and juvenile delinquency cases.

Ball has a rich Kentucky history; her family has been in Eastern Kentucky since the 1790s, and she holds a degree from the University of Kentucky College of Law.

As Treasurer, Ball was a national leader for improved financial literacy; she established the Kentucky Financial Empowerment Commission and successfully advocated for a financial literacy high school graduation requirement.

As Auditor, Ball continues to act as a fierce watchdog of Kentucky taxpayer dollars protecting them from waste, fraud, and abuse. During her first year, she conducted and released over 400 audits, thoroughly examining the financial practices of county governments and state agencies across the Commonwealth. Notably, Ball released a full performance review of the Department of Juvenile Justice, shining a light on the harsh treatment faced by youth in the juvenile justice system resulting in an ongoing Federal investigation. Additionally, her office's annual Statewide Single Audit of the Commonwealth of Kentucky uncovered a Cabinet employee embezzling funds, resulting in a federal indictment.

A Floyd County native, Ball and her husband, Dr. Asa James Swan, have two children, Levi and Marigold. Upon birth of her son, she was the first Kentucky Constitutional Officer to give birth while in office.